DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's arguments filed 12/18/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. See argument below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,2,4,7,10-12,15 remain rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Motojiuma et al (USPN 4866201; 9/12/89). New claims 16-18 are added to this rejection. Motojiuma et al teaches a method of applying to orchards (fruit trees) a composition comprising instant compounds of formula I. See abstract, column 20 lines 50-63. Motojiuma et al does not teach an invention comprising citrus fruit trees or an invention comprising increasing amounts of flavonoids and other phenolic compounds. Note that orchards are fruit trees. Also note the step of applying the compound of formula I to the fruit tree in the claim is also carried out by Motojiuma which makes it obvious that the flavonoids and other phenolic compounds would increase in the orchards of Motojiuma.

Response to Applicants' argument

Applicants argue:

1) Motojiuma et al does not teach a method of increasing the flavonoid content of a plant.

2) Motojiuma et al teaches that the compound of their formula may be used to treat various/numerous locations including undergrowth grasses in orchards. In order to arrive at the Applicants' invention one would have to select treating the location of undergrowth grasses in orchards from the numerous locations disclosed in Motojiuma et al. Motojiuma et al is not specific to orchards such as cherries, plums and sloes to be treated using a specific compound of formula I as recited in instant claims.

The Examiner argues:

The step of applying the compound of formula I to the fruit tree in the claim is also carried out by Motojiuma et al which makes it obvious that the flavonoids and other phenolic compounds would increase in the orchards of Motojiuma et al. The claims are specific to treating specific types of fruit trees (orchards), whereas Motojiuma et al is to treating orchards broadly. Note, no data have been provided by the Applicants' demonstrating that the treatment of different orchards with a compound of formula I would render unobvious results. Motojiuma et al teach orchards broadly which encompass the specific orchards of the claims. With respect to specific compounds of the formula disclosed by Motojiuma et al, Motojiuma et al teaches the use of many compounds (see Table 1) that are equivalent to the compounds of formula I which are embraced by the instant claims.

Claim Objection / Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3,9,14 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. Claim 6 is allowable. The prior art does not teach or suggest the invention comprising grape plants.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
